COMMISSION PLANS

City Will Be Improved Under New Program Mapped for Coming Year

General improvements and new equipment for city departments are provided in Atlanta's first "cash basis" budget, completed yesterday with provision for a $10,330,815.02 expenditure.

The budget's provisions will be subject to revision by the 1938 budget commission which will take over the tentative budget Monday night and make their report to city council January 17.

Addition of 25 policemen to active duty, two-way radio communication for police cars, and $18,000 in new police cars and motorcycles is one of the major provisions of the budget.

This is Atlanta's first budget under the new law abolishing the budget is based on actual receipts of congress.

WILL FLY NON-STOP FROM U.S. TO HAWAII

90 Men Will Make Largest Long-Range Trip in Navy's History.

WASHINGTON. Dec. 30.—(AP)— Navy officials indicated today that next month's "ferry" flight of pa-trol bombers to the Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, base would be the largest of the kind in the navy's history.

Eighteen of the long range, twin-motored flying boats instead of 12 as previously announced will un-dertake the non-stop flight of 2,400 miles from San Diego.

They will include 12 planes of a squadron not yet designated, and six spares. Though January 19 has been selected tentatively for the start, officials said weather and other consideration might de-lay departure as late as Febru-

ATLANTA, GA., DECEMBER 31, 1937.

TO STRENGTHEN THE ARMS OF PEACE Fortunately for the future peace of the United States, and the world, one of the potential menaces seems to be weakening by the natural trend of public opinion. That menace is the Ludlow resolution now in congress, proposing to amend the constitution to require a popular referendum before this country could declare war, except only in case of actual invasion on United States soil.

The Ludlow amendment supporters succeeded in securing 218 votes to take it out of committee and force it to the floor of the house for discussion. That was during the closing days of the recent special session. Reports from Washington now indicate, however, that many of the 218 signers of the petition have changed their opinion and regret that action. It thus seems probable the resolution will be permanently shelved in a committee pigeonhole, or quickly killed if it is brought to the floor.

Particularly in view of the precarious world situation, centering now in the Orient, it would be extremely unfortunate if that resolution became an issue at this time. The only result would be a weakening of the influence of President Roosevelt, Secretary of State Cordell Hull and other representatives of this country in their dealings with other nations. Thus the influence of the United States in the cause of world peace would be practically destroyed, and this country would be rendered more helpless and more tempting as prey for ruthless military powers which already threaten the entire

President Roosevelt has been generally commended for his handling of the delicate situation created by the Japanese destruction of the U. S. S. Panay Yet there can be no doubt that the Ludlow resolution, even in its present status, affected the outcome of the Panay incident. Despite acceptance of the Japanese apologies by this country, there is no certainty that new "incidents" of like nature will not again arise as a result of the recklessness of the Japanese military authorities and their independence of control by the civilian government at Tokyo. Undoubtedly the Japanese army leaders feel confident they have nothing actually to fear from a nation which can rally a majority of its representatives in favor of such a proposal as embodied in the Ludlow plan.

On the other side of the picture is the growing public sentiment in favor of the larger navy program which President Roosevelt will present to congress next week. Increased naval power does not mean that this nation is actually expecting war. It merely means the nation is willing to provide the strength necessary if American efforts for peace are to carry weight with foreign powers who respect only force as authority. The knowledge that this country is well prepared either to defend itself or to enforce its demands is all that is sufficient. Then the representatives of the American people can speak, in their dealings with other nations, with a voice that will be respectfully heard.

Some advocates of an enlarged navy program have based their support upon economic grounds, arguing that naval building will provide employment and act as a stimulus to business generally. This is fallacious reasoning. If there is real reason for a greater navy, as pointed out, the new ships of war should be built. If there is no reason for them, it would be better to turn the money into domestic construction of bridges, buildings, roads, etc. To spend money on ships which are not needed would be nothing but a case of glorified boon-

The Ludlow resolution is nothing but an appeal to that weakness of American temperament, unrealistic emotionalism. Sentimental extremists, whose blindness to reality sees the helplessness of the rabbit as proper defense against the hawk, will doubtless argue for it. But, in actual fact, it would increase, rather than decrease, the chances of war for this

By direct inference the Ludlow resolution announces that the American form of democracy is unable to place confidence in its own leaders. Which means, if America cannot elect competent officials to lead the nation under the present system, that system is wrong. But democracy as interpreted by the federal constitution and as exemplified by American history is the finest form of human government yet devised, according to the unshakeable belief of every true American.

Believers in totalitarianism would rejoice to see the Ludlow resolution adopted. They regard it as a confession of weakness by the greatest democratic nation. For the sake of democracy, for the sake of American prestige and for the sake of peace, the resolution should be forgotten and the President's request for an enlarged naval building program should be

THE SOUTH AND WOOD PULPS

If wood pulp suitable for the manufacture of white papers can be economically produced in the south, there may result a basic change in the import situation of the United States, according to a report made to congress by the tariff commission.

At the present time newsprint and sulphite pulps comprise a large proportion of American pulp imports, the commission stated, but pointed out that many experts believe southern pine can be economically used for the manufacture of sulphite pulps.

If this belief is correct, the time may not be far distant when the south will give the nation a product of importance in quantity sufficient to make this country independent of other lands for that commodity. At present the United States consumes far more paper than it produces, but the possibilities in southern pulp production are so great this situation may actually be reversed within the next decade.

If such a condition eventuates, it is of vital importance that southern pine forests be conserved to the uttermost. Despite the quick growth of this timber in this section, improper methods of cutting can quickly destroy the forest wealth. States must enact laws to prohibit entirely the criminal waste of clear cutting and provisions must be made to enforce the practices of correct cutting, so that the forests shall be a perpetual crop. They should be regarded always as a source of ever-growing wealth, rather than as a mine to be worked solely for immediate profits.

The pulp outlook in the south gives encouragement to the belief that through this rapidly expanding industry a new money crop may be developed to offset, in part at least, the shrinkage in export markets for cotton. Man's ingenuity constantly seeks and finds new sources of wealth to take the place of revenues which man, through his own stumbling lack of foresight, has tossed away,

HEARTLESS CRUELTY

The disclosure of a real estate swindle in New York which victimized hard-working immigrants in the mill towns of the industrial states of the east, tears the cover off a racket which must be classed with the worst examples of heartless disregard for human prey.

Attorney General John J. Bonnett, of New York, states that there are 1,500 alleged victims, including scrubwomen, laborers, factory hands, coal miners, steel workers and cripples. The extent of individual losses was, in most cases, limited only by the total of hard-earned savings which each had to lose.

These poor people, most of them natives of non-English-speaking foreign countries, were sold practically worthless pieces of real estate at exorbitant prices, with the "sales talk" based upon promises utterly impossible of fulfilment, These promises seem to have had no limitations, the "salesman" telling his prospect anything at all in order to secure the money.

Such swindles are cruel at all times, but when they take the life savings of poor workers who are more easily victimized because of their limited knowledge of the American language and American customs, the cruelty is multiplied. Others may be held partly to blame at least, for failure to investigate or to ask advice from reputable real estate dealers, or from proper officers of the law, but these poor people, most of them, do not know where to seek advice and, driven by high-pressure sales methods, they are made to believe their despoilers are really their best friends.

The federal government is now urging the building of thousands of new homes, urging a nation-wide expansion in home building activity. The exposure of such rackets as this Long Island real estate swindle is a necessary step in any program for increased home ownership. If some means can be found of guaranteeing to the prospective home builder not only that the lot he purchases is worth the money paid, that its title is clear, but also that the contractor who builds his house gives full value in every piece of material used, and that the house, when complete, is a real home and not a flimsy piece of jerry-built patchwork, the government will do more to encourage home building than it can accomplish by all plans for loans and

BUDGET BALANCING WASHINGTON, Dec. 30 .- Under the unkind pressure of the new depression, many traditions and certainties of federal finance are crumbling away. In the last three weeks there have been two remarkable

tances of the quality and importance of this unnoticed process

1. At the urgent suggestion of Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr., the President is now considering a new method of revenue estimation to replace the traditional forecasting system which has been in use at the treasury for 16 years. This may mean a change in the whole budget mechanism.

change in the whole budget mechanism.

2. In order to supply badly needed additional funds to the WPA, the President has already privately agreed to unbalance the present budget by a further $100,000,000.

UNHAPPY PROPHETS With the stock market no better than a quagmire and production contract-ing daily, Treasury Director of Research George Haas and his assistants have found predicting the tax revenue for the next fiscal year a hopeless business. The fiscal year does not begin until July 1, 1938, and by then, for all they know, business may be booming once more, or every manufacturing plant may have been taken over

Recently they took their troubles to Secretary Morgenthau, who ruefully recalled the 49.80 per cent error made in the 1932 estimates by the extremely able Ogden L. Mills, and the other unhappy miscalculations into which the treasury has fallen. Anxious for his own good repute, Mr. Morgenthau prepared three schemes which would not require such painful long-sightedness of the treasury exerts. With his schemes in his pocket, he hurried over with them to the White House.

By the first scheme, the fiscal year would merely be made to coincide with the calendar, which would make the fiscal New Year's day January 1 instead of July 1. By the second, income tax collections would be delayed six months, so that the first tax payment on the calendar year ending December 31 would not be made until after the following July 1. And the third is an adaptation of the British budget system, by which the fiscal and tax years both end in March, and budget estimates for the new year are made in April.

The President reacted favorably to Mr. Morgenthau's plea for consideration of one of these schemes. It may well be that congressional authorization will be requested for the preferred one. At the same time, the President and Mr. Morgenthau are a trifle leary of prompt action. They fear to be accused of "phenagling" with the get at a time when it cannot be balanced by straightforward

The President's sympathy with Mr. Morgenthau was natural. He has had trouble himself prophesying the extent of unemployment, and therefore the size of the necessary relief appropriation, for a period so deferred as the fiscal year. Last year, he delayed his request for relief money from January until April, in order to be able to offer a surer guess.

CASH FOR NEEDED RELIEF The hole and corner addition of $100,000,000 to the national deficit became necessary this month, when the pressure of unemployment forced an expansion in Works Progress Administration enrollment. Probably even the $100,000,000 will not meet the problem of 3,000,000 new jobless. Business will have to improve surprisingly, if supplementary congressional relief appropriations of from $150,000,000 to $200,000,000 are to be avoided.

The President was able to pass $100,000,000 to the WPA without being noticed by one of the feats of legerdemain common in federal finance. The money came from a portion of last spring's relief appropriation, which the President had segregated and ticketed "not to be spent." Since it was so ticketed, it did not appear in the federal balance sheet and was not included in the deficit estimates. Thus the fact that the President has promised it to WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins means a deficit increase of $100,-

It also means that, instead of the $1,876,000,000 originally planned by the President as this year's relief expenditure, the expenditure will be close on $2,000,000,000, and that, where the WPA was originally expected to get along on $1,200,000,000, it will now have available $1,300,000,000.

In spite of the increase, the WPA will have to make a very severe spring cut in its rolls, if it is not to overspend its treasury balance. In view of the business situation, and the testimony that past spring cuts have been arbitrary even in good times, it must be realized that more money will probably be needed. That is where the additional $150,000,000 to $200,000,000 will come in.

Relief is a queer business, about which hard, realistic thinking is the rarest thing in the world. Either statesmen desire to scrimp foolishly on relief or they desire to be lavish. That is the extent of om on the subject. But common humanity and pressure from the districts will always make certain that relief appropriations are fairly sufficient to care for the jobless.

There you have a thumbnail sketch of our world and one of the explanations of its manifold woes.

For 20 years the intellectual progressives of America have looked toward Moscow for the world's salvation. They were fooled from the first, for they saw Russia through the mist of their dreams. It was another sad example of wishful thinking. They saw what they wished to see and believed what they wished to believe.

Therefore, Moscow—or, rather, the idealistic dreams of what it might have been—has influenced every idealist and progressive in America, from the President down.

Yet, never for an instant has Moscow been, in spirit or in fact, anything like the dream picture seen in America. Among the leaders of Russia's revolution there must have been good-hearted, simple and unselfish men to whom Communism and universal brotherhood meant the same. Communism was their religion, and it was much like Christianity. They wished to "have all things in common," as the early Christians did—to work unselfishly for the common good, without thought of personal gain, with love and fellowship and plenty as

Their plan failed, as such plans always have, and as Christianity itself did, for want of perfect people.

Those who truly believed were the good and the simple. The strong and shrewd and ambitious believed only in gaining power sing it to their own advantage. Nothing was achieved except that the old upper class was rob-bed and butchered and a new upper class, ignorant and filled with malice, began a new reign of tyranny and held its power in the ageold way by butchering all opponents.

The dreamers can't see it yet, but all that happened was inevitable in a world of selfish, imperfect people.

For Communism means public ownership and centralized management of all activities. That means control of everybody by a central power. In practice it means rule by one man and his agents. And while men remain selfish, greedy and to abuse authority, it means inevitable suppression, spies, terror and submission or Association Recognizes Trend Toward Investment in High-Grade Securities.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30 .- (A)-The present situation in most banks, with the traditional primary function of making loans to business customers giving way to investment in high grade securities, was recognized today by the American Bankers Association as a more or less permanent change in the banking business.

Conceding that the present high proportion of investment may be abnormal, the association in a statement today predicted "investment securities may continue to constitute an important, if not pre-dominant, part of banking assets."

Consequetly member bankers are urged in a "statement of principles and standards of investment for commercial banks," just adopted by the association's bank management commission, to carefully analyze their own comparative commercial loan and security investment problems, in order to work out sound investment programs. Frank Thomas To Start Usual Tide Lineup Against Bears

A GUEST COLUMN Kenneth Gregory

(Editor's Note: Today's guest column is written by Kenneth Gregory, southern regional sports editor of the Associated Press.)

At times my curiosity gets the best of me. So for the sake of my curiousness and a bit of variety as a pinch-hitting "Break O' Day"-er, I decided to do a little research on All-America football players. This being the season for all-star selections, and football not quite out of the picture with all of our "bowl" games, I feel someone might be interested in what I discovered.

Just when I had discovered some vital and interesting statistics, thus satisfying my desire to rumble through records and files, along comes your most welcome card from Denmark. It was then I remembered, as one sometimes will if "pushed" a little, my promise to be a guest writer some day during your absence.
So, here goes with my trip to the plate as a "pinch hitter."

CAMP'S SELECTIONS WERE "OFFICIAL."

From 1889 through 1924, the late Walter Camp selected All-America teams that were recognized universally. After his death the Associated Press began selecting its all-star team with the aid of sports editors and football writers on its more than

The Associated Press honor roll of 11 players has become recognized almost generally as a successor to the selections made annually by Walter Camp. In addition to the hundreds of sports editors participating in the poll, divisional Associated Press sports editors gather the viewpoints of coaches and scouts.

Alan J. Gould, your old pardner in New York and our general sports editor, has just recently released his 13th all-star team. On it were two southern players, Leroy Monsky, of Alabama, and Carl Hinkle, of Vanderbilt, both captains of their teams. This is the 12th straight year southern players have been so honored on the Associated Press team.

In all of the years since Walter Camp started rounding up all-star American teams, 28 players of our section have been honored. Six of them received this recognition on Camp's teams. Twenty-two have achieved such fame on the Associated Press teams.

Undoubtedly, the increase in southern representation may be traced directly to the advancement of football in the south. The spread of intersectional games, with southern boys displaying their prowess in the east, which dominated football for many years after the turn of the century, has helped focus atten-

Alabama's great record in four appearances in the Tournament of Roses at Pasadena has added prestige for southern foot-The Crimson Tide is now making its fifth invasion of the Rose Bowl. Georgia Tech and Tulane have been there. And a share of the glory must be given Georgia, whose teams beat Yale five consecutive times. No other team has done that.

BIG THREE DOMINATED EARLY SELECTIONS.

Walter Camp's first team of 1899 was made up solely of players representing Yale, Harvard and Princeton-the Big Three. So were his teams of 1890 and 1893. Pennsylvania was honored on the teams of 1891, 1892 and 1894. But through those six years only these four schools landed places.

In this connection it might be worth while to mention that Fred Hinkey, weighing only 152 pounds, was selected at end by Walter Camp for four straight years. The diminutive Yale end, historians there claim, played those four years without an opponent gaining a single vard around his flank.

Walter Eckersall, the famous Chicago player, was selected three years, once at end and twice at quarterback. A Yale with the same lineup that carried with the same lineup that carried player was on every Camp team from 1889 to 1914. Harvard Alabama through the tough games, was represented each season from 1889 to 1917. It was not until 1918 that the south landed a player.

Since then, southerners have been missing only on three annual teams. That was in the years of 1922, 1924 and 1925.

The south has produced many great ends. They have, at least, been recognized in the All-America parade. Starting in 1920, when Camp placed Bill Fincher, of Georgia Tech, on the honor roll, the south has seen 11 of its ends voted to the mythical lineup. Big Red Roberts, of Centre's famed Praying Colonels, followed Fincher, and then came Lynn Bomar, of Vanderbilt.

On down the line, the others came as follows: Wu Winslett, Alabama; Chick Shiver, of Georgia; Dale Van Sickel, of of Roses game. The average is 21. Florida; Jerry Dalrymple, of Tulane; Vernon Smith, of Georgia; Paul Geisler, of Centenary; Don Hutson, of Alabama, and last Paul Geisler, of Centenary; Don Hutson, of Alabama, and last too much to withstand, Merrill, a but not least, Gaynell Tinsley, of Louisiana State, the only big tackle, and more rugged ends Joe Hunt, San Francisco, seeded tackles; Sivell and Howell, guards; Happy Campbell and Bear Bryant. southern player to make the team two consecutive years.

Four tackles have received recognition. Frank Speer, of Georgia Tech, was the first. Then came Freddie Sington, of Alabama: Fred Crawford, of Duke, and Bill Lee, of Alabama. Centers and quarterbacks were three. Bum Day was the first center honored and Red Weaver, of Centre, followed him by a year. Vanderbilt's Hinkle of 1937 was the third. The great Bo McMillan, now Indiana's head coach, was elected quarterback in 1919. Bill Spears. of Vanderbilt, won a place in 1927 and Riley Smith, of Alabama, came along in 1935.

For the other three positions, Guard, halfback and fullback, the south has twice been represented at each. Monsky, Alahama's 1937 star, followed George Barclay, of North Carolina, at guard by three years. Tony Holm, of Alabama, was the first proper mental and physical pitch. fullback, in 1929. Bill Zimmerman got the honor in 1932. The Auburn's lone member of the hall of fame was Jimmy Hitch-Auburn's lone member of the half of the lineup in 1936.

And they are confident that they have timed it just right. After to have timed it just right.

This was quite a bit of interesting fun, Ralph. I hope the fact that followers of "Break O' Day" can get it all here in blue skies all the day long.

NEW TREATY LINKS

ROME, Dec. 30.—(AP)—A trade agreement regulating Japanese commerce with Ethiopia today was added to the political ties already binding Japan and Italy. Its terms were not made public, although it was understood to provide for a comparatively small ex-change of goods. Japanese circles described it as "very important." The new agreement, signed by Japanese Ambass.dor Masaaki Hotta and Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano at the Palazzo Chigi, was said to supplement the

The Male Dresses Up On America's Riviera

ON AMERICA'S RIVIERA

Whether On Beach, Pool, Deck or Desert, His Attire Is Colorful

and Sporty-Shirt-and-Slacks Ensembles Prevail. By ROBERT FAIRCHILD, EDITOR MEN'S FASHIONS.

The gaiety of the European Rivieras has been somewhat curtailed the last few seasons, what with the war on the Spanish peninsula and other political complications. But America has developed its own Riviera, on a front that includes not only the sandy shores of Florida, Cuba, California, etc., but the desert surroundings of Palm Springs and the decks of cruising steamers..

High spirits of winter vacationers are reflected in their gay and colorful sports clothing. Walk the streets of the resort towns and you see men at ease in shirt-and-slacks ensembles, sandals, shorts. In mid-winter they wear with grace and style-sanction the free and easy garments of the summer—and as a matter of fact it is the choice of the winter vacationers that frequently sets the pace for the styles of the coming summer.

Beach shirts are sporty-looking, with the emphasis on the color rather than the pattern Coarse rough cottons, linens, nubbed rayons and smooth ones serve as materials for either shirt or slacks or both. The rayon summer suiting fabrics, sleek and cool-looking, have style approval, and so does rayon gabardine.

Gaily Patterned Hawaiian Prints

shirting that must be mentioned, because it is the choice of many well-dressed men, is one that is a wild burst of pattern—the printed Hawaiian cloths that carry exotic designs of the South Seas. Models of shirts include the three-button pullover, the fly-front pullover with a single button at the throat under the collar; the coat shirt with two patch pockets and side vents, and the bush shirt, with four patch pockets and a bett. Most of these are finished straight across the bottom, to be worn either in or out of the trousers.

These shirt-and-slacks ensembles will These shirt-and-slacks ensembles will be widely worn for regular resort-town street wear, as well as on deck. Increas-ing in favor, too, are shorts, instead of slacks, with the shirt, for tennis or for street wear.

Southeastern Conference To Hear Experts From All Over Nation.

A two-day Southeastern Planning Conference will be held in Atlanta on January 11 and 12 for a discussion of "Planning, State and Interstate," officials of the Georgia State Planning Board announced yesterday.
Outstanding leaders in the field of planning from all over the na-tion are included on the program, and indications point to a much larger attendance than at the 1935 1936 conferences in Savannah and Jacksonville, officials de-

"How can planning help the southeast to avoid the mistakes of older industrial areas?" will be answered by Walter Blucher, of Chicago, executive director of the American Society of Planning Of-

"The Survey of Southern Forest Resources" will be discussed by Raymond Leonard, planning technician of the Atlanta regional of-fice of the National Resources Committee; Joseph C. Kircher, di-rector of the United States Forest Service, and Frank Heyward, Georgia state forester.

Others included on the program are Robert H. Randall, consultant, National Resources Committee, Washington; Howard W. Menhi-nick, long prominent in the field of planning; Sam F. Brewster, commissioner of conservation for Tennessee; Flavel Shurtleff, of the local staff of the American Planning and Civic Association; Hugh Pomeroy, of the National Association. tion of Housing Officials; L. W. Robert, of Washington and Atlanta, and John W. Blandford, gen-eral manager of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Governor Rivers, Blandford and George Fort Milton, publisher of the Chattanooga News, are on the program for the dinner conference on Tuesday, January 11.

Arrangements for the conference are being directed by H. T. McIntosh, of Albany, chairman of the Georgia State Planning Board, and regional chairman of the National Resources Committee.

Funeral Services for Gray Veteran Will Be Held This Afternoon.

Thomas D. Terry, 94-year-old Confederate veteran, died yesterday afternoon at the residence of a daughter, Mrs. Robert C. Lowe, 1158 Highland avenue, N. E., after a two weeks' illness.

Services will be conducted at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon in the chapel of Awtry & Lowndes by Dr. Louie D. Newton. Burial will be in West View cemetery.

Mr. Terry served the duration of the War Between the States with Wheeler's cavalry brigade in southern Tennessee and north Georgia. He came to Atlanta more than 35 years ago, making his home with his daughter. Born in Forsyth county, he was a wellknown merchant in that section. Surviving are three other daughters, Mrs. W. L. Gay and Miss Mary Terry, both of Atlanta. and Mrs. J. W. Harvard, of Jefferson, Ga.; four sons, Homer T., Oscar A., Thomas Clare and Ellis E. Terry, all of Atlanta; a brother, Charles D. Terry, of Birmingham, and several grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

ATLANTAN'S BURIAL TO BE HELD IN N. Y.

Ulric S. Atkinson Started Insurance Career Here.

Funeral services and burial for Ulric S. Atkinson, 67, former Atlanta insurance man, who died un-expectedly Wednesday night in New York city, will be held there

Born here, Mr. Atkinson began his insurance business in the offices of the late Captain Edward S. Gay, later becoming associated with the Royal Insurance Company, where he was assistant manager at the time of his resignation. He was active in club work here and was a founder of the Atlanta Athletic Club. From Atlanta, he went to Chicago in 1922 and was connected with the Marsh & McLennan Insurance brokerage firm. He was agent for the Union Canton of China Fire Insurance Company. Mr. Atkinson went to Newark, N. J., to help establish the Public Fire Insurance Company, then to New York, in 1932, where he became an official of the Great American Fire Insurance Com-

He was a past-president of the Capital City Club, a member of the Piedmont Driving Club and the Atlanta Athletic Club. He belonged to St. Lucas Episcopal church.

Sally Forth Turns Clairvoyant To Predict Results of Romance

By Sally Forth.

SALLY is really bewildered by the new epidemic that has hit the town. Scarcely will the whirl of debut parties subside before Atlanta will be dizzy with events that will surely last far into the summer, honoring the numerous belies who will tread the orange blossom path between now and July. So many of Atlanta's most popular girls are either wearing, or on the verge of wearing, one of those gorgeously symbolic stones on the correct finger that Sally finds it difficult to decide where to begin in giving you clues.

Of the engagements most prominent on the announcement calendar for next Sunday is that which will link the name of one of the season's most fascinating brunette debs with that of a tall and hand-some swain who hails from a near-by town and who is soon to take his lovely bride to a distant city for residence. Then, too, there will be the announcement about the curly and blond-haired sub-deb who will cancel all other school plans at spring vacation and be-gin to prepare her wardrobe for a wedding to culminate with a home on an island in the Atlantic ocean. Our hero, in this case, bears a name prominent in At-lanta and was a member of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity while at Georgia Tech.

Have you seen the lovely ring a debutante of several seasons past has received from her northern flance? The belle, one of a trio of blonde sisters, has been sporting her ring for several weeks. And from a northern college there comes word that another attractive sub-deb, of the tall, brunette classification, has "noed" her Atlanta beaux for one of Virginia's finest.

Joining matrimonial ranks soon will be three lovely members of the Debutante Club of last year, but here Sally is not permitted to do more than list the girls and the lucky men and let you match up the descriptions. One belle is a brunette of the Irish type and is one of three children. The next is a tall blonde of the Dresden type, who made her formal bow at a brilliant tea-dance. And, last on the list, a brownette with a sparkling sense of humor that has made her much in demand for many gatherings. Each of this attractive trio has chosen a blond Atlantan, two of whom have wavy hair. All are about the same

WHEN Eldredge Grove be-VV comes the bride of Malcolm Tarver Jr. on January 19, her wedding ensemble will be trim-med in exquisite Brussels lace which bears deep sentimental in-terest. The lace was bought in the Belgium city over 50 years ago by the bride-elect's grand-father, W. S. Payne.

It was first worn by his daughter, the former Cecelia Payne, when she became the bride of R. D. Grove, the two being parents of the present bride-elect. Mrs. T. M. Willingham, aunt of the bride-elect, wore the lace on her dress when as Frances Payne she became a bride.

When Mr. Payne and his wife, the late Mrs. W. S. Payne, cele-brated their golden wedding anni-versary in 1928, the latter chose the lovely lace as a trimming for her dress to wear on the auspiclous occasion.

Another bit of sentiment which will feature the bridal ensemble when Eldredge becomes Mrs. Tarver will be the handsome gold cross which her grandfather, Mr. Payne, gave his wife as a wedding

New "Sparkling" Bath Has Magical Effect on Jaded Spirits

MY DAY

By Eleanor

FARGO, N. D., Wednesday.—Back on a plane, having left the train at Billings, Mont., at 3 o'clock this morning. At present we've had breakfast in Fargo and are waiting for weather reports which we hope will allow us to continue on our way.

Yesterday all wires were down along the railroad for about five hours and I thought I would never get my column filed in time. To-day I'm taking no chances and am getting it off nile we wait.

I hope to be in Washington tonight, but you may hear from me again somewhere along the road. It is good for my typing anyway, as I have to do it myself, but I am a bit sorry for those who have to read it.

One of the Christmas presents which I enjoyed the most came to me just before I left Washington. I tucked it into my brief case and knew I could spend some pleasant hours going through it. It is "The Desk Drawer Anthology," compiled and selected by Alice Roosevelt Longworth and Theodore Roosevelt Jr. Ukpower of are better fitted to do a book of this

Roosevelt Longworth and Theodore Roosevelt Jr.

No two people I know of are better fitted to do a book of this kind. They were brought up on poetry, for Uncle Ted and all his family loved to read and recite it. Colonel Theodore Roosevelt and his sister must have heard every variety, both classical and nonclassical, from their earliest youth. I don't remember much about Ted's memory, but I have always regarded Alice's with awe, for she could recite a long poem after reading it over once.

In compiling this anthology, Alexander Woollcott, town crier of the radio, asked the people of the United States to send Alice Longworth and Colonel Theodore Roosevelt Jr. anything they had read and clipped out and put into a drawer to read again in leisure moments. Alice and Ted's selections are almost entirely American, except in a few instances, where English poets have been can, except in a few instances, where English poets have been allowed to creep in. So the subtitle, "Poems for the American People," could almost be "Poems by the American People." I am pleased to find so many old friends that are rarely found in the usual type of anthology.

I am most grateful to my cousin Ted for sending this book to me, though he makes me feel a little guilty because of his in-scription, which reads: "Dear Eleanor—I bought your book and liked it very much. This book comes to you as a present. Merry

Thank you, sir, for liking my book, and for sending yours. I'll be more thoughtful next time, though I know you won't derive half as much pleasure out of the next book, which I will send, as I have derived from yours.

Answer—Milk. soft half and the soft ha years or more. July 19, while working over a dog that had been poisoned, presumably the veter-inary was bitten. The dog died that afternoon. The veterinary, suspicious, sent the dog's head to the health department for examination, but did not wait for the health department report. He went at once to a physician who cau-terized his wound with nitric acid and immediately administered the first dose of Pasteur virus. The veterinary received 14 doses in the two weeks immediately following the bite. Incidentally, the health department reported the exami-nation "positive," that is, the microscopic examination of the dog's brain showed certain cells or ab-normal structures called "Negri bodies" which some pathologists believe characteristic of rabies and of nothing else. According to one published report the victim's widow said "Veterinaries know that is the only sure way to stamp out rabies. Yet for suggesting this, they are cruelly maligned." In the same report a health officer asserts that "there is only one answer to the control of rabies, and that is the absolute elimination of all stray dogs and confinement of properly owned dogs to premises except when on leash. This man developed his illness, whatever it may have been, three months after that particular dog bite. Veterinaries and their assistants, as well as dog-catchers or handlers of animals in city pounds or humane society hospitals are bitten innumerable times and generally take it far less seriously than does a layman when nipped by a dog. If one could gauge the prevalence of rabies in dogs by the proportion of "positive" health de-partment laboratory examinations of dog's brains, one would have to admit that rabies is more or less pandemic in this country. But frankly, call it what you will, I can't take these "Negri body" findings so seriously. Rabies may oc-cur in animals—I don't know. But I do not believe the scientific evidence available warrants the opinion or belief-and, of course, that is all it can be in any case

-that rabies occurs in man. Frankly, I wonder whether the virus or "vaccine" the veterinary received had something to do with his death. The 14 injections of Pasteur virus or vaccine were inoculations with a kind of emulsion or suspension of the dried died of some disease, presumably rabies, with which it had been inoculated. Uncertainty about that is what makes me shudder at the thought of receiving an injection of Pasteur virus or vaccine, in shoulder sleeves, jaunty revers, princess lines, and flared hem are

> BUSINESS GIRLS START BACK-TO-THE-FARM MOVEMENT

If you haven't heard much about Blue Monday lately, it's be-cause the smart business woman is using her week-ends to get into shape. She gets completely "away from it all," relaxes, and loses three or four pounds . . . All of which puts her in a new mood for Monday.

The letter impossible in the complete in the com

The latest innovation in week-ending is to life yourself to a reducing milk farm, where life is arranged for you. You relax and reduce. I visited one of the most popular of these farms, in Nanuet, New York, to find out exactly how it is done. You may not be able to manage a week-end away, but you can adopt some of the excel-lent ideas worked out by Evelyn

Since business women are tired from the week's grind, stress is on relaxation and massage rather than exercise. On arrival at the farm, a doctor and a figure expert take you in hand. You are measured to the stress of the stres ured to find out where you need to lose for symmetry, and the masseuse goes to work on the fat pads. The reducing may also in-clude electric blanket and cabinet treatments. treatments. ·

Then, of course, there is a special diet. Food is served every two hours. The chief item on the diet is a specially prepared, cul-tured milk. Each glass contains 72 calories. This is varied with hot or cold tomato juice, broth and fruit juices. One-calorie biscuits, which are appetizing and filling, are important features of the menu, which is balanced by the addition of salads and poached

An Expert Tests Weight and Measurements.

It wouldn't do you any good to to get a sudden hankering for a chocolate nut sundae or a heaping portion of mashed potatoes cause those items can only be obtained at a great distance from the farm-and you would have to

Furthermore, because the manager was smart enough to realize that nothing creates an appetite more easily than the smell of food, she has arranged that no cooking be done on the premises. In fact, as soon as apples appear on the branches in the farm's extensive down because their winey scent stimulates the salivary glands!

Successful week-end slimming largely due to moderation in the diet during the week, and sound advice is given the office farmerettes on this subject. In addition to the diet, physical activity at a gym or out of doors is suggested as a change from the workday routine.

Here is the slimming diet to be

Dull Old Gold.

We like very much your idea of dull green broadloom for the floor. For draperies, though, we'd be inclined to favor a plain fabric of another color in your furniture coverings. A pair of chairs in a very dull old gold might be quite interesting. Then maybe a deep brown for the sofa, and for an extra chair a figured linen in quite a gay floral pattern. Or, if you use just variations of tans, browns and greens for the furniture—that would be the smartest thing, though it's more difficult to do

As for the sun parlor, you could use a contrasting coloring, though we'd prefer the same tone as in the living room. And we'd prefer treating the windows here all together. You might use a figured linen or chintz here in a flowered design that is sprightly yet har-monious with what you do in the

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield: I am going through a heart-breaking experience and I have nobody to turn to. Ten years ago I made the a quaintance of a man who was at loose ends with life. He had no job, no home and apparently no pride and ambition. I put him on his feet, literally and figuratively. Many a time I have done without my dinner to buy something for him that he needed. After a few months he began to come up. He spruced up in appearance, seemed to have a new heart in him and actually got a job, then a better one and a better one until he made much more than I did. I thought of course he would say, "Let's get married," but as time went on he began to go around with other girls and one day he told me that I shouldn't count on him as he liked variety. I couldn't believe my ears and waited patiently, thinking he would realize his obligation and come and tell me about it. Things have gone from bad to worse until now I seldom see him. When ! do there is a fearful strain between us. What do you make of it? Please tell me where I slipped.

AGE THIRTY.

Answer:

You slipped first in your estimate of the man. If he had been made of good stuff he would never have permitted you to spend your money on him. If he had been halfway decent he would have cleared up his financial debt to you, beginning with his first pay envelope. When he failed to come through with that, you should have known what it au-gured: Namely that he didn't recognize any moral obligation to you and that he had no affection for you, that he was checking out. But worse and more of it, you are still slipping, for you suppose that this man who has behaved like a cad will yet come back and behave like a gentleman loyer. He never will.

No use to shed bitter tears and indulge in self-pity. No use to recount your kindnesses to him and dwell on the happy hours you spent together. He wasn't worth your sacrifices and he isn't worth your tears. You should pick up your life where you left off when you met him and blot him out of your thoughts. At the moment you don't want to do this, but event ually you will have to. Why not now while there is yet time for love and romance?

It is a queer thing but there is no surer way for a girl to lose her boy friend than to put him under obligations to her—any kind of obwomen will go on and on coming to the rescue of no-accounts, each

Remember That Night

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

When a theatrical company disbands in Harriston a young actress deserts her six-month-old baby. John and Hetty Malare adopt her and name her Karen. Her foster-parents dead when she is 20, she quits her dress shop job to go to New York to realize her ambition to be an actress. Jerry Forbes, whose uncle owns the Harriston Bank, begs her to marry him, then wishes her luck saying he'll be waiting "if you need me." In New York, Roxanne Dell, who sings on a hotel roof, is her neighbor. After Karen sees the famous Brenda Bond in Philip Ashley's new play, she drops her handbag containing all her money in the lobby. A handsome man returns it. He is Philip Ashley. He takes her to a party to meet Brenda Bond. She overhears a woman's remark about Ashley's picking up girls while Lilyan Kane is in London, and leaves. Philip apologizes as he drives her home: she knows she loves him. Bill McGrath, Roxanne's finance, disappears from a ship and Karen sings for her to save her job while she goes to Bill's parents. Philip takes Tomny Notling, playbay, to the roof. After a stormy scene, Marion Leland breaks her engagement to Tommy. He asks Karen to marry him; instead she tells Marion elopes with him. Philip, who goes to London, had arranged with Bernie Tappen, Broadway producer, to give Karen a small part, and asked Tommy to take her to Tappen. The show soon closes. Now GO ON WITH THE STORY. WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

836 986 NEW YORK, Dec, 30 .- (AP)-Rearmament was again the principal buying motivator in today's stock market.

In sluggish pre-holiday deal-ings, selected steels, aircrafts and miscellaneous issues that might benefit from extensive defense spending moved up fractions to 2 or more points, although profit realizing reduced peak prices at the close. The Associated Press average managed to hold a gain of .6 of a point at 43.3. Transfers totalled 913,360 shares compared with yesterday's volume of 2,460,960. Cash selling for income tax returns was plentiful as Wednesday was the final day on which regular transactions on a 2-day delivery basis could be made.

In view of the fact the market will recess Saturday for New Year's, many traders got an early 14 Zen Radio 2g 1336 1236 1336+ 76

CHICAGO, Dec. 30 .- (AP)-Notwithstanding that export business in North American wheat today totaled 600,000 bushels, rather large for a holiday period, wheat prices here merely marked time.

Alternate fractional advances and declines of wheat values were in various quarters associated with general business uncertainty. It was especially contended that a more decided increase of export takings of United States wheat would be needed to bring about sustained upturns of wheat prices here. Today's export purchases of North American wheat were esti-mated at 300,000 bushels of Canadian wheat and 300,000 bushels of United States hard winter. Europe was credited with buying 500,000 bushels of United States COURTS & CO.—With any encouraging news from Washington, a sharp rally would probably develop. The President's message to congress next Monday should give some further clue of what to expect when congress reconvenes.

BEER & CO.—Developments in Washington next week when congress reconvenes, and the tone and content of the President's message, may prove to be important factors, marketwise.

E. A. PIERCE & CO.—Consider market likely to continue within moderate trading range over the near term with our preference for purchases on moderate setbacks.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO.—All markets may be largely influenced by recommendations made by President in speech to congress opening session Monday of next week.

GRAIN OPINIONS.
COURTS & CO.—There is not much interest in wheat at the present time. Believe it will sell lower after the turn of the year.
BEER & CO.—Unless export demands increase we anticipate irregularly lower levels. BEER & CO.—Unless export demands increase we anticipate irregularly lower levels.

FENNER & BEANE—We look for more active buying after the first of the year. Favor buying on dips from this level.

E. A. PIERCE & CO.—Considering the number of uncertainties surrounding the wheat situation at this time, believe a long position in corn temporarily offers more attraction than one in wheat.

Three of Five Who Fled Prison Captured; Only One at Liberty.

Three of five men who made a sensational break from the new million and a half dollar Tattnall prison were captured yesterday, bringing to four the number of escapes rounded up.

Judge G. A. Johns, chairman of the State Prison Commission, announced the capture of the three men, saying he had received a telegram from the sheriff at Jones-boro, Tenn., they were being held there.

Details of the capture were no learned. The escapes were listed as Robert Croker; J. P. Barners, and S. E. Dutton. A fourth escape, Ben Pratt, was recaptured at Miami, and officers have gone to that city to return him.

The convict still free is Phil

Morgan, who was serving an eight to 12-year sentence for a felony. The convicts fled the farm of the prison December 15 by over powering a guard and taking his shotgun. They escaped in a prison truck, which was later found between Baxley and Hazlehurst.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.-(A)-Hours and hours of New Year's Eve dancing, nearly as much of New Year's football-five gameswill be radio's way of celebrating the turn of 1937 into 1938.

Dancing in the new year long has been a custom of the networks in introducing another year. These parties start around midnight and keep it up far into January 1. They open in New York and then proceed westward across the country as midnight arrives in the various time zones, closing in Ho-nolulu. Outstanding dance bands participate.

The hour of 3 a. m. generally is the closing time, but this year NBC is to keep it up until 4.

TARZAN UNDER FIRE

Tarzan knew he must act quickly. The air was heavy with the throb of signal drums, booming the news of his escape throughout the forest. He must find Yvonne and the boys before jungle warriors had an opportunity to trap him and return him to the prison town . . .

Roswell P. Rosengren Outlines Purposes of Body in Address Here.

By LUKE GREENE. Potentialities of American youth in the work of building a greater nation were pictured yesterday by Roswell P. Rosengren, president of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce, as he addressed more than 300 Atlanta civic leaders at a Bosses' Day luncheon.

Outlining the purposes and accomplishments of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the national president pointed out that the organization was instrumental in securing the passage of the Robinson-Pittman bill, providing for allocation of tax moneys on sporting equipment to a special nservation fund.

Program of Good Health. He explained the Junior Cham per of Commerce is now working to bring about the passage of the McCarran-Lee bill for the improvement of air traffic. The ganization is also striving to foster agriculture, lessen crime, and promote a program of good health mong the American youth, he "We have no quarrel with our elders, but we submit respectfully that we are youth," he declared.

"We are that youth which will rebuild the nation as Washington, Jefferson, Hamilton and Madison ... we are that youth which will span another figurative Atlantic with the yout. Lindbergh . . . we are that youth which will give to world another figurative radio with the youth Marconi; we are that youth whose horizons have not yet been dimmed by the clouds of defeat.

"Let us stop this raging about other isms and let us preach the greatest guarantee of human rights as well as the greatest ism in the world-Americanism." he continued. "We accept that challenge of the ages and we answer, 'We shall carry on.'"

Competition Gone. Rosengren said when the Junior Chamber of Co nerce was first organized it had to compete with the luncheon service clubs, the yeterans' groups, and the Chamber of Commerce, but that such competition no longer exists.

The organization has establish-and adhered to a strict policy of "never butting our heads against the elected officials of government, national, state or local, simply for the sake of hearing ourselves talk," he said. "Because of this policy, every multi-politi-cal-labeled door of officialdom has been opened to us by strong co-operative hands."

"In its ranks and among its leaders are rich and poor, Jew and Gentile, Catholic and Protestant, Democrat and Republican, laboring elbow to elbow in the study, from original sources, of the major problems of the day as a basis for intelligent action," he a basis for intelligent action, said. "These young men are judged not by who they are but what they are; not by what they have but what they do." Three Objectives.

The three objectives of the organization, he emphasized, are to make the world a petter place in which to live, to live worthwhile lives and to give to the world children worthy to bear the name

Amendment Defines Dealer as One Buying Animals for Slaughter.'

An amendment to Georgia's 1937 livestock law to provide a check on sales was on the statute books vesterday.

Passed by the special session of the legislature and signed by Governor Rivers, the amendment additionally defines a livestock dealer as one "buying livestock of any kind for slaughter."

It was introduced in the house by Representatives Parker and Barlow, of Colquitt.

The original bill, enacted at the regular session of the legislature last spring, defined a livestock dealer as "any person, firm or corporation engaged, or who hereafter engages, in buying livestock of any kind for resale, or in selling livestock of any kind, bought for the purpose of resale."

The new law, approved March 31, 1937, requires:

1. A livestock dealer to register with the ordinary of the county of his residence and obtain a

2. Make a record of the license

3. Have the dealer's license in his possession when driving or hauling livestock upon a public road or highway of Georgia, and exhibiting it to any sheriff, deputy sheriff, constable or peace officer on demand. on demand.

The act makes it unlawful for any dealers to buy or sell livestock after sunset or before sunrise, except at an abattoir, public slaughter pen, packing house, meat market or public stock yard.

It also provides that "any person found guilty of larceny of any animal, after judgement has become final, shall be ineligible to receive another license and any license theretofore issued shall be void."
